'Tis this, my friend, that streaks our morning
bright,
'Tis this that quells the horror of the night—
When wealth forsakes us, and when friends are few,
When friends are faithless, and when foes pursue,
'Tis this that wards the blow, or stills the smart,
Disarms affliction, or repels his dart—
Within the breast bids pure transports rise.

Communications.

[The following polite and flattering note, we received through the medium of the post office, at a late hour yesterday afternoon. We have, in this day's paper, partly anticipated the wishes of the fair Tristissa, which, in the present shape, would have merited implicit obedience from such who are least inclined to do honour to the virtues and many amiable qualities of the lovely daughters of Columbia—but for ourselves, we are proud of the distinction which the Ladies' Friend has contributed to obtain for us—as, to meet the commendations of our patrons, and particularly such of them, who, like Tristissa, are willing to be pleased when every exertion is used for that object, we consider some remuneration for the difficulties which those engaged in publishing a newspaper are doomed to encounter.]

Messrs. Editors, I have been anxiously looking these some months back for your champion and advocate, (the Ladies' Friend) but my disappointment has only equalled my chagrin, by supposing that we have deserved this neglect—if so, we truly regret it, as his generous and unbiassed opinions were very gratifying to all your female readers.

N.B. Please correct this—I intended saying more, but for fear of verifying what the Spectator says, that a woman never speaks her mind but in the postscript, I will close, with my best wishes for the success of your very useful and interesting paper.

*Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth.

Messrs. Editors.—I had the pleasure of attending the Young Men's Bible Class, in Pear street, on Monday evening last, under the direction of the Rev. Mr. Allen, and must say I was extremely gratified with my visit. In looking around the room (which was very thinly attended) I could not but reflect how many young men were at that moment wallowing in dissipation, who might have been here listening to the explanations of the mysteries of Divine Providence, as far as a human being can explain them. Why is it that the youth of this city are so negligent concerning the great and important events connected with their eternal welfare—it does appear to me as if they regarded "Immortality" more as an object to be enjoyed than as a reality—as though they thought the salvation of their souls of no importance—as though eternity (and I tremble at the thought) was but a name!! I understand the Young Ladies' Class, under the direction of the same Rev. Gentleman, meets with the most unbounded success, and far exceeds the expectations of its most sanguine friends. The female class consists of nearly 200 members, of whom scarcely ever less than 150 attend—whilst the male class (I say it with regret) consists of but 60 members, of whom not more than about 25 attend!

Whence arises, Messrs. Editors, this apathy? this slumbering inactivity? is it because they say there is no amusement, or is it the fear of being laughed at, or of being ill-treated? The probability is that are long they wish they had partaken of this amusement. But whether let me ask, will it be most to their advantage to regard the monks and priests which men offer to the votaries of dissipation, or to attend to the voice of the Almighty, who calls them to repentance?

When you call the attention of the youth of this city to the opposition of the Fire and Flower, held at Keating's Hotel, I deny the claims of the persons who were present to respectability—as a proof of which he adduces the committee who framed the resolution expressing the sense of the said meeting on the proceedings of what he would term the orthodox firemen. Now, in "soler cadence," if any one of the gentlemen forming that said committee are less respectable than any tanter at the first meeting, then will I allow "the Moon a Cuckoo cheese." His delicate allusion to the gentlemen from the Northern Liberties at once proves his title to respectability, and the boisterous and unruly behaviour evinced at the meeting at the Court House, gives us but a "sorry sample" of the fire men if all who spouted there were such—I hope some more able penman would give Signior Cuto the information he craves, with every attention to correctness.

TRUTH.

WHO PAYS THE FINE?

It seems almost to be the result of Providential interference, that the Firemen of this city, were on Thursday last, afforded an opportunity of enforcing their claims on the patronage and support of the corporation, in a manner not to be resisted—by preserving from destruction the very edifice in which the councils hold their sage deliberations. The Cupola which will rise on the ruins of its predecessor, is hoped, will justly be regarded by succeeding generations as a proud monument of the liberality of the Councils of Philadelphia, to their meritorious and unequalled firemen. As it has been ascertained, that the conflagration at the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets, was not the work of an incendiary, how can it be made to appear consistent with Law or Justice, that a private individual incurs a penalty for keeping a "dirty chimney," and cannot help asking when he sees the court house on fire,

Who pays the Fine?

THEATRICAL.

A young man by the name of Adams, has recently performed the characters of Hamlet and Octavian in New-York. Speaking of him, a correspondent of the N. Y. American, says—"We have not had (with the exception of our countryman, Mr. J. H. Payne) any young candidate for histrionic fame, that has evinced so correct a display of talent as Mr. Adams; and I think it even doubtful if Mr. P.'s first debut was as good as Mr. A.'s first appearance." In the new farce of Tom and Jerry, performed at the Adelphi Theatre, in Lon-

LONDON, Dec. 7.
Boss-Street.—Saturday, a young little fishman, with dark sparkling eyes, and a black glossy well-curled poll, dressed in a blue carrier's frock, and heavy travel-stained shoes, was brought in by some of the patrol, who had found him strolling about Longacre, in the dusk of the evening, apparently without aim or object, and laden with a large bundle, tied up in a very handsome shawl. His bundle contained seven gowns, sundry shawls, handkerchiefs, hose, &c. and a smartly trimmed straw bonnet, nearly new; and the patrol declared that, from the very unsatisfactory manner which he accounted for his possession of these articles, they very believed he had stolen them. They also pointed out to the Magistrate a round hole, about the size of a shilling, in the side of his hat-crown, which they strongly suspected had been made by a pistol ball.

"What is your name, friend?" said his Worship, to the brilliant-eyed smiling prisoner—"Jimmy Sullivan!" "Jimmy Sullivan!" your honour, was the instantaneous reply, in the richest bogue imaginable, and a tone so loud, that all the office echoed—"Jimmy Sullivan!"

"And pray where do you bring these clothes from?" and to whom do they belong?"

"From Portsmouth, your Honour—and they belong to the wife of me."

The magistrate doubted the correctness of this statement—it was not likely that the wife of such a man could have such a wardrobe.

"Sure enough it's the truth, every bit of it, your Honour," replied Jimmy Sullivan.

"How came this hole in your hat?" asked his Worship.

"'Is it the hole your Honour's axing about?"—"Fait then, the mice made it, to get at the bread and the cheese, your honour—bad luck to 'em!"

"What do you carry your bread and cheese in your hat?"

"No, faith, your honour, not a bit of it at any time, barrin that time the mice stole it all, and then, your honour, it was not in it, that's the hat, at that same time, but on the shelf, your honour, and I'd none of it left for my breakfast at all—Gad's blood says I to myself, but yesh! 'nt do that to me again, says I, for I'll put it under me hat all the night; and so I did your honour; but bad luck to them, the craters, they bored the hole clane through the side of it, which your honour's axing about."

"Are you sure it was not on your head when the ball was fired at it?" asked his Worship without seeming to have listened to his bread and cheese adventure.

"Was it on my head, your honour?—Fait if it was, meself wouldnt be here spaking to ye about the mice," replied Jimmy Sullivan, with a shrewd queerish sort of a smile.

The officers in searching his pockets, had found a number of English and Irish pawnbrokers' duplicates, and the magistrate selecting one of them, asked—

"Where did you get this ticket for a pelisse?"

"Bought it, your honour, of Myke Dermot, in Dongsigade—Ke, a bagpiper, your honour!"

"And pray what are you?"

A tailor, your honour, was the reply; but one of the patrol, who is skilful in such matters, having examined his hands, declared that if he was a tailor, he had not used the needle these twelve months at least.

What have you to say to that, Mr. Sullivan?" asked his Worship.

"Bad luck to the tailoring, your honour, it wouldnt agree with me at all, any how, an I discharged meself clane out of it by the same token your honour!"

"And how have you got your living since?"

"I walks down to the water side, your honour—an gets me little bits of reads, an things, an ties 'em up like bagpipes, and plays on 'em your honour, Gumachree, an' the likes of it; an' the jontlemen please to hear me, your honour; an some gives me a shilling, an some half a crown, may be; and some buys the little bagpipes for themselves—your honour!"

Honest Jimmy endeavored to make the nature of these little bagpipes very plain to his honour; but he did not seem to understand it exactly himself, and so he made nothing of it. Neither could he account for his bringing his wife's wardrobe up London whilst she herself remained in Portsmouth; and eventually he was committed for further examination on Wednesday next.

Even this order for his imprisonment he took in perfect good humour; and having carefully counted the ten or twelve shillings which the Magistrate ordered to be returned to him, he replaced them at the very bottom of his pocket, and said, "I hopes your honour'll take care of me things!" The Magistrate assured him he would, and honest Jimmy Sullivan then followed the turnkey as blithely as if he had been going to Donnybrook fair instead of to prison.

Tight Lacing.—It has long been a matter of regret with persons of good sense and good taste, that many of the females of this country injure their health and real beauty of form, [as the pressure generally forces out the parts expressed] by the absurd practice of wearing tight stays. The folly seems now to have spread to the men, if indeed such blockheads merit that appellation. It is a fact, that an exquisite fainted away on Friday, in Bond street, and was assisted into a shop, where he was some time before he recovered. Medical aid was sent for, when it was ascertained that his stays were too tight.

The British and Foreign Bible Society. It appears that this illustrious charity received by legacies during the year ending May 1st, 1822, nearly twenty thousand dollars—that it issued from its depository during the same period 255,739 Bibles and Testaments, and that the whole amount of Bibles and Testaments issued since the formation of the society, and at its expense, at home and abroad, is no less than 3,563,974.

EAST-INDIES. At Batavia, on the 16th January last, a tremendous volcano poured forth stones and lava from a mountain situated in the Beangien Regencies, about 200 miles from the city. Five thousand natives were buried by the stones and ashes. Three hundred have been found most dreadfully burnt, and but faint hopes are entertained of the recovery of most of them. This place was one of the most beautiful and highly cultivated sections of the interior of this rich island. Coffee and rice grew luxuriantly and plentiful there.

SPAIN.—A French journal, belonging to the government, speaks very freely of the internal affairs of Spain; and after recommending a number of (what it deems salutary) alterations in its administration, concludes thus—"But if Spain refuses to adopt measures a hundred times more useful to her than France—if she persists in disturbing us with the confusion of civil wars, then will Europe be compelled to exclude her from the community of civilized nations; to suspend all diplomatic and social relations; to shut every port against the Spanish flag; and, likewise, to recognize the States formed in America—finally, to Novel Captain.—At the Coburg Theatre, on Saturday evening, an extraordinary circumstance took place. The house was excessively crowded, and the pit completely overflowed; so much so, that some of the audience were obliged, in self-defence, to get on the stage. This, as may naturally be supposed created no little disturbance, which was only quelled by the removal of the intruders. The house had scarcely recovered from the alarm occasioned by the screams of the ladies and vociferations of the gentlemen, when a new scene was represented. Two Sheriff's officers "made their first appearance on any stage." It appeared that they had vainly lain in wait for a dramatic hero outside the theatre; and on his appearance in a pathetic scene suddenly rushed across the orchestra on the stage, and captured their unfortunate prisoner. The curtain was instantly dropped, and we left the scene of uproar occasioned by the circumstance, without waiting for the denouement of so extraordinary an exhibition.

MECHANICAL ACCIDENT.—A most deplorable accident happened to a young gentleman on Saturday last, about 11 o'clock, which we mention as a caution to our citizens generally. While in the spring of 1820, that had the following kinds of game in it, viz:—Ten rabbits, one dung-hill fowl, one weasel, one rat, and one snipe; those were found in the nest with one young owl, all the game appeared to be grown to their full size, the fowl was nearly all eaten, with more or less of all the rabbits; one of the old owls was shot while in the nest and the other made its escape. He immediately procured two men to watch that night for the return of the thieves, to take away the remainder of the property. About half past 12 o'clock on the night of the 13th inst. two men arrived, and proceeded to the hay loft where the stolen articles had been left; Mr. Berthelet and his two associates made a noise, upon which the villains ran off—Mr. B. fired his musket, and shot one of the fugitives, who died in consequence of the wound in about 20 minutes after he received it. Fire.—The Meredith Cotton and Woolen Manufactory, at Meredith, N.H. was burnt on Friday week. The fire is supposed to have originated in the friction of the Spinner, and so rapid were the flames that the building was consumed in 37 minutes. Seven females were at work in the building, and, being precluded the means of escape by the stairs, six of them perished from the windows. All these were severely injured: two or three, the surgeons suppose, cannot recover. They all received material hurts in the spine: one had her skull fractured, and the flesh of her forehead lacerated in a most shocking manner; also, the bone of her right thigh broken; the fall was so violent that the bone of her thigh was driven into the spine. Others, being pushed through the windows, face foremost, fell on their hands and faces, dislocated both wrists, and cut and bruised their foreheads and eyes. Others received their weight on their feet and dislocated their ankles. Every one remained senseless and motionless till borne away by their friends.

Most singular sagacity and affection of a Dog. We are credibly informed, says an Essex paper, that a few days since some person on the opposite side of the river, (in Dutchess county) for some supposed or perhaps sufficient cause, and a dog, and, as he supposed, mortally wounded him. The dog was at the time in a field, and probably out of sight, from any dwelling. He was felled to the ground. A person living adjacent to the spot (several days immediately succeeding, without having any knowledge of the fact that the dog had been shot) observed his dog daily, after being fed run with alacrity with part of his rations in his mouth, in the direction where the wounded dog was found, was, from this unusual conduct of his dog, induced to follow him, and to his astonishment, he found that his dog had been some days carrying comfort and sustenance to his unfortunate fellow quadruped, who had by this means been saved, become convalescent, and restored to his master. What a lesson to poor human nature!!!

The inhabitants were compelled to retire to the woods, in which they remained about six weeks; during which time there were two or three slight shocks daily. It had caused great consternation, and a large procession had in consequence been got up and paraded through the streets with an image of our Saviour carried in front.

Extract of a letter from Havana, dated 13th, to a gentleman in this city. "Yesterday there had like to have been a most unfortunate affair between the boatmen of this city, and the officers of the U. S. Spark. It appears that the Spark had given convoy to some schooner from this port, and the commandant was informed that one of the schooners under her convoy was a well known pirate that had robbed several American and English vessels—she was therefore taken possession of and sent with the crew to the United States, the passengers, and the people, when the news was spread, appeared very much vexed at the Americans, so much so that they threatened to destroy the brig. Towards evening, the officers were coming on shore, but were not permitted to land; for the boatmen on the wharf saluted them with broken bottles and stones, and had the clubs raised in case they should attempt to land. Seeing this they returned to the brig. The schooner was owned by some Catalans, who are the cause of all the disturbances here. Last night an Italian (a chairmaker) was killed. A lively woman sold a sale of some goods a short distance from town, brought in by the pirates—Gold watches sold for about 6 dollars—Pieces of muslin 6 dollars—and declinal at 100 dollars per person."

Some particulars of the operation of Moravia, given, but nothing of moment, had appeared, as we have before been informed, had appeared in Chili a convention is to be assembled to form a new form of government. The people of the Republic are said to be enthusiastic in favour of liberty, and while it is impossible for Moravia to proceed, he keeps progressing, and of late appears to have been successful. Some trouble was experienced in Porto Rico—the Creoles have declared for the Republic, and threatened a civil war. At Lima, business was dull, and the market glutted with American produce. Com. Daniels has a large squadron than the Columbian, have been able to equip.

PORTO RICO EX. Our readers will recall an expedition fitted out in New-York and Philadelphia, for the purpose of revolutionizing the island of Porto Rico, which was the reason for joining among other things, he (who we believe is a very young man) had received agents from the friends of Porto Rico, which involved terms, to aid them in thought the inhabitants were to be changed to govern ready volunteered. As regards the information which has already been given, he says that he is to sign it as a mere agent, that he regarded it as a mere governmental document, time promising to sink it if overhauled by a Spanish official, but Decoudry promises, and thus the affair is closed.

The Snow Ship.—A vessel exhibited yesterday at 1 o'clock, a small schr. (the William) wrecked voyage along the coast, arrived at this port on Saturday, on the night before last, fell froze on every particle, and yesterday morning (on the 10th), most splendid days we ever experienced of this like vessel was broken like glass, and its rigging round by some ingenious sailors of the purest cotton thread on board was general, and every knot folded envelope of ice, exhibited as if she had just made the North Pole. The very appearance to come from a little dog looked quite black pig appeared to be white and unsullied object, wherever he could obtain snout.

PAT AND THE TRAVELLER.

A Traveller one day chanced to meet brother Pat,
"Come, tell me, I pray, whose fine mansion is that?"
"Arrah, honey," says Paddy, while scratching his head,
"One Mr. Fitzgibbon lives there, but he's dead!"
The traveller, good soul, said to Pat, as he sigh'd,
"I pray thee how long since the owner has died?"
"Och! your honor," said Pat, in very great sorrow,
"He'd be just three weeks dead he lived till to-morrow!"

ANECDOTE OF WASHINGTON.

In 1777, while the American army lay at Valley Forge, a good old Quaker, by the name of Potts, had occasion to pass through a thick wood near headquarters. As he traversed the dark brown forest, he heard at a distance before him a voice, which, as he advanced, became more and more fervid and interesting. Approaching with slowness and circumspection, whom should he behold, in a dark bower, apparently formed for the purpose, but the Commander in Chief of the armies of the United States, on his knees, in an act of devotion to the Ruler of the Universe! At the moment when Friend Potts, concealed by the trees, came up, Washington was interceding for his beloved country—with tones of gratitude, that laboured for adequate expression, he adored that exuberant Goodness, which, from the depth of obscurity, had exalted him to the head of a great nation, and that nation fighting at fearful odds, for all the world holds dear. He utterly disclaimed all ability of his own for this arduous conflict—he wept at the thought of that irretrievable ruin which his mistakes might bring on his country, and with a patriot's pangs, spreading the interests of unborn millions before the eye of eternal mercy, he implored the aid of that arm which guides the starry hosts—Soon as the General, having finished his devotions, had retired, Friend Potts returned to his home, and threw himself into a chair by the side of his wife. "Isaac," said she, with tenderness, "thou seemest agitated; what is the matter?" "Indeed, my dear," said he, "I appear agitated, 'tis no more than what I am. I have seen this day what I shall never forget. But if George Washington be not a man of God, I am mistaken—and still more shall I be disappointed, if God does not, through him, perform some great thing for this country."

Ben Johnson being one night in the Lion tavern, there was a country gentleman in the company, who interrupted all their discourse with an account of his lands and tenements; at last, Ben, unable to bear with it any longer, said, "what signifies your dirt and your clods to us, where you have one acre of land I have ten acres of wit." "Have you so?" replied the countryman, good Mr. Johnson? "This unexpected repartee from the clown struck Ben mute for some time. "Why how now, Ben," (says one of the company,) you seem to be quite stung?" "Why, I never was so pricked by a hob nail before," replied he.

A CURIOSITY.

A MR. GIBBS, Lottery Broker, of this city, has been recently exhibiting in this state a curious piece of mechanism, said to be the work of an Italian artist. It consists of a box four inches long three wide and two deep—of fine gold. On one end is a snuff-box—in the other, a lid opens and discloses an eight day time piece, which, besides striking the hours and quarters, plays a number of beautiful tunes. But the most wonderful part is, that on setting a spring, a picture on the top of the box rises slowly, and discovers a bird ascending from below. The Bird is of an inch in length; of plumage the most rich, and yet the most natural. It sings with astonishing sweetness, and accompanies its voice with all those motions common to a living bird—its head turns from side to side—its little bill opens, and its throat swells at every note, and its wings and tail spreads and Returning to England.

JOHN OLDRIDGE, begs leave to acquaint his friends and the public, that on account of the great demand for the Balm of Calcutta in Great Britain, and particular family affairs, he intends taking his departure, with his family, in a few months, from Philadelphia, and therefore thinks it his duty to inform his patrons, that it would be well for them to lay in a stock of his BALM for family use, as he does not intend to leave an Agent in the United States.

Its utility as a preventative for the falling off and restoring of hair is universally allowed and approved by thousands who have used, or seen it tried; therefore it is unnecessary to enter into a long detail of its other virtues. It is now made nearly colourless, and still retains its former virtues. It is prepared and sold, as usual, at his establishments, No. 554 South Front street, and at No. 11 North Fourth street, Philadelphia, at one dollar per bottle, and 50 cents for a half bottle. Good allowance to those who purchase quantities.
